ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Kris Jones spent 30 years as a high-end hairstylist (Vidal Sassoon trained), reinvented himself through sales, marketing, and AI — then wrote the book he needed as a skeptic.

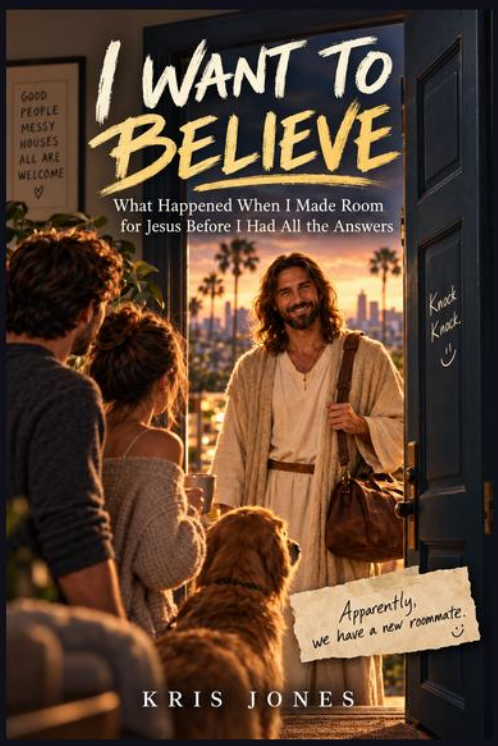

I'm not a pastor. I'm not a theologian. I'm the guy who did your hair for 30 years and then wrote a book about God anyway.

Kris lives in Southern California, where he founded Aid Media Now, an AI-powered marketing agency. Away from business and writing: guitar, keyboards, beats, drawing, surfing, cooking, and the outdoors.

THE SHORT VERSION

Hairstylist → AI guy → Author (long story). I wrote about the roommate who never pays rent. No preaching, I promise.

ABOUT THE BOOK

I WANT TO BELIEVE

What Happened When I Made Room for Jesus Before I Had All the Answers

A 50-year skeptic. A lifetime of honest questions. One very unexpected roommate.

Through the ridiculous idea of a new roommate who never pays rent, Kris explores doubt, wonder, and the possibility that faith starts with honesty, not certainty.

Warm, funny, and honest — an invitation to real conversation for believers, skeptics, and seekers alike. No borrowed certainty. No pretending. Just room to explore.

AT A GLANCE

- Genre: Humor / Memoir / Spiritual inquiry
- Tone: Funny. Real. No judgement. Non-preachy

PRAISE FOR I WANT TO BELIEVE

★★★★★

“Insightful, funny, and wonderfully easy-to-read… approaches these profound subjects with humor and curiosity rather than preaching.”

— Susan Cohen — Amazon review

★★★★★

“The 'roommate' concept is funny, relatable, and surprisingly meaningful… I especially appreciated the reminder that it's okay to be curious and still figuring things out.”

— RisingVibes — Amazon review

“Totally worth it!! It made me laugh and definitely got me thinking… quick and fun to read.”

— K the Buyer — Amazon review

WHAT KRIS BRINGS TO YOUR SHOW

- The doubter's perspective — faith without the sales pitch.
- Deconstruction with a sense of humor intact.
- Reinvention at 50+: hairstylist → AI founder → author.
- Honest pushback — he'll disagree on air, and it'll be the best part.
- Real talk for the spiritually curious who can't stand church culture.

SAMPLE INTERVIEW QUESTIONS

1. You spent 30 years doing hair — how does a hairstylist end up writing a book about faith?
2. What's the difference between deconstructing your faith and just… quitting?
3. You say the book is "for the skeptics because you ARE the skeptic" — what does that mean in practice?
4. Funniest thing someone has said to you about the book?
5. What would you say to someone who's spiritually curious but can't stand church culture?
